

FLIR GF-343

Optical Gas Imaging Camera

The GF-343 is an optical gas imaging camera that lets you see CO₂ leaks quickly, easily, and from a safe distance. Whether CO₂ is a byproduct of a production process, a trace gas used to detect leaks from power generators, or as part of an Enhanced Oil Recovery program, fast and accurate detection of CO₂ leaks is key to keeping your operation running safely, efficiently, and profitably.

Visually Detects CO₂ Gas Leaks in Real Time

Use safer CO₂ as tracer gas to localize leaks and verify repairs quickly, easily, and reliably

- See CO₂ used as a trace gas to find leaks of more dangerous gasses, like hydrogen
- Find where CO₂ is escaping from EOR operations
- Discover CO₂ losses in a variety of industrial manufacturing, transportation, and storage uses

Spot hard-to-find CO₂ leaks

Decreases Downtime and Saves Money

Detect CO₂ as a predictive maintenance tool to prevent downtime and inventory loss

- Avert unplanned outages
- Allows online inspections so you don't have to take revenue-generating equipment offline for inspection
- Stop leaks to save money from lost inventory and regulatory fines

See even more with High-Contrast mode

Improve Operations Safety and Protect the Environment

Keep facilities safe while working towards a carbon-neutral operation

- Improve efficiencies of EOR operations
- Stop leaks in carbon capture and storage operations
- Use CO₂ as a trace gas to find dangerous hydrogen leaks
